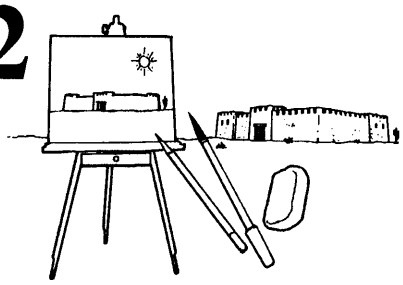
The Past: Can You Dig It?

Archaeologists are specially trained to uncover clues to human history. Visitors to public lands should never dig up or take ancient artifacts. But there are ways you can help protect clues to the past. Look at the pictures below and circle those actions that you can take to protect clues to America's past. Draw an X through actions that would harm those clues.

1

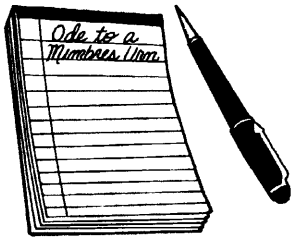
Draw graffiti

2



Paint a picture

3

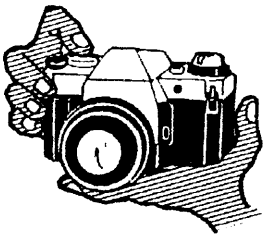


Write a story

4

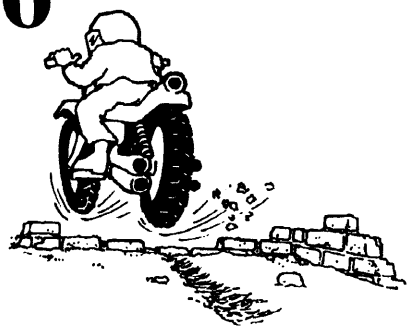
Spray paint

5



Take a photo

6



Bike across

7

Walk on walls

8

Take objects home