Dear BLM,

This is my second letter to you regarding the WOPR. Because of the complexity of the issue I feel compelled to write again.

My concerns are twofold now. I'm afraid BLM has not addressed global warming as the critical issue it is. Old growth forests are an invaluable source for storing carbon. Healthy large trees help to keep carbon pollution out of the air in their trunks & soil. Climate change is a critical concern. Old growth is critical in mitigating global warming. And there is the intrinsic value in old growth trees. We appreciate their majesty, strength & beauty. The quality of our lives is enhanced by them.

Furthermore, the BLM is not legally mandated.

My suggestion is not to take any action. The BLM is not required to "return to its timber productive roots."

Sincerely yours,

Roxy Hills
