Dear Folks at the Western Oregon Plan Revisions Office:

Growing up on the prairies of Kansas it's been a new life living in the Siuslaw National Forest in Deadwood, Oregon for the past 32 years.

As an artist, the Old Growth forest behind my home has been an important inspiration in my work as well as a place where many folks have enjoyed the Windy Peak Trail over the years.

It is also a spotted owl habitat area and there has been no independent peer review that found the WOPR review scientifically credible.

The best plan is "No Action".

Sincerely,

Marylou Goertzen

P.S. You are all invited to come to see this beautiful area!
