Leave the Old Growth Virgin forests alone!

To start I don't know who is going to read this letter of appeal, but my hope would be that it would be heard by the people responsible for the decision to denigrate the last of the virgin forests. The reasoning that we need the money to kill the trees is false we could find other solutions. The reasoning that it's a natural resource that's being wasted and is decadent is false, we could let what's left of our virgin forests live out their life spans forever without touching them in any way. Do we really have the right to kill whatever we deem necessary? We do not understand reverence for all life. If we did, or had, there would be vast areas of virgin forest left all over the world. But sadly no, they've been destroyed gone forever along with thousands of species of other life from the animal and plant kingdoms. Even though today we are confronted with evidence that our ignorance has resulted in mass extinction of life forms, global warming, and apparent irreparable damage to our planet we continue to allow the insanity to destroy us. Virgin forests have a purpose they are a life form just like us, their lives are in the same of things just like ours, we want to grow old as we can before we die, so do they! There's only one solution to the question should we cut in the west of our virgin forests, no! There isn't room for compromise. There doesn't have to be financial need, or corporate greed. There really isn't good science that proves it's okay to take it all. We as humans really don't understand anything about our virgin forests, and without reverence for that life form that came before us we never will. Please, people leave the old forests alone let them live out their lives, as you would live out yours.

Sincerely, Michael Hess
