More than 90% of old growth forest in the lower 48 states has been removed including all but 15% of old growth in the Pacific Northwest.

This WOPR is in my opinion a carefully crafted plan to build hundreds of miles of roads and hand over our precious old growth to the forest industries. I cannot agree less with this rape of our public lands.

The BLM should be protecting and improving our forests by thinning the second growth and using existing roads as much as possible to satisfy the needs of the lumber industry.

Clearcutting our forests is not management, it is criminal contempt for the lands entrusted to the BLM

Sincerely -
R.W. Corrigan
