To whom it may concern.

I'm against the BLM's clear cut strategy. Lets thin forests and not rely on the BLM's over-reliance on clear-cuts of old growth forests.

The 'no action' plan or status quo is what I want to see put in effect so as to lessen fire danger. Leave our few large & Old growth alone & stop the clear cuts.

You guys know large trees are more fire resistant and help restore animal & bird habitat.

If you would go after smaller trees you would not be tied up in court by people trying to save old growth.

I'm 57 years old. My grand father hauled wood to L.A., & my father hauled old growth out of pine logging mill at Huntington Lake area Calif.

I fought for my country in Viet Nam. I grew up here in the U.S.A. and understand the logging mentality. I was a boy scout and taught to respect the forests.

I hope all of you people don't bow to the whims of the logging companies & easy money from the loss of our big trees. Save our Planet & manage our forests for future generations.
Sincerely Jim Fetter
