I wanted to say both my wife and I have ben avid quaders because we like the ideal behind looking at the things that typical people cannot such as the rare wildlife or exotic plant life. We stay on the designated paths and take things casually. We pay every year for our tags and our permits through the burea of land management. Im not against nature I think its great especially when my wife and I can go into places a normal car cannot to enoy them. The berry goldwater range has to have a special permit after taking an education video and a quiz. I think this would be a gret ideal is to educate people about how to enjoy the wildlife and preserve it while off roading. Those people wanting to do so will get the extra permit to go off roading in that area and the funds will help control the people that are out to ruine for others. We are for the ideal of playing safely amonst each other and the wildlife however all Im asking is not to let a few spoil it for the rest. Thank you
