Yaquina Head Interpretive Center Closed for Building Maintenance

Newport, Ore. – The Yaquina Head National Historic Interpretive Center will undergo building maintenance beginning Monday, November 17 and lasting approximately 11 days. This project will involve replacing the aged boiler system within the facility. The anticipated reopening is November 28.

Along with the Interpretive Center scheduled closure, the Yaquina Head Lighthouse is currently undergoing a lighthouse preservation project and will be closed to the public until mid-January 2015. The Yaquina Head Outstanding Natural Area site will remain open during the projects. To learn more about the Yaquina Head National Historic Interpretive Center visit us online at:

About the BLM: The BLM manages more land – 245 million surface acres – than any other Federal agency. This land, known as the National System of Public Lands, is primarily located in 12 Western States, including Alaska. The Bureau, with a budget of about $1 billion, also administers 700 million acres of sub-surface mineral estate throughout the nation. The BLM's multiple-use mission is to sustain the health and productivity of the public lands for the use and enjoyment of present and future generations. The Bureau accomplishes this by managing such activities as outdoor recreation, livestock grazing, mineral development, and energy production, and by conserving natural, historical, cultural, and other resources on public lands.
