To all concerned with WOPR:

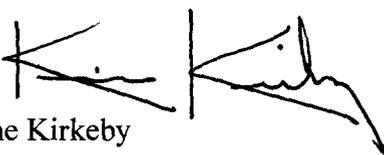

My wife and I are two more persons opposed to the cutting of any more old-growth timber, in Oregon or anywhere else.

You have already heard the arguments in opposition of cutting old-growth, so we will not repeat them. We will, however, remind you that these arguments have so much moral force behind them that for the BLM to ignore them and authorize such cutting would be a reprehensible act.

Do what is right: say no to cutting old-growth timber.

Sincerely,

John Carter
