Welcome

Thank you for visiting Cascade-Siskiyou National Monument, a unit of the Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) National Conservation Lands. The Monument was set aside on June 9, 2000 in recognition of its remarkable setting and biologic diversity. The Monument is situated where the Klamath, Siskiyou, and Cascade Mountain ranges converge, setting the stage for dramatic scenery and a diverse range of plant and animal habitat.

BLM's National Conservation Lands are part of an active vibrant landscape where people live, work, and play. They feature exceptional opportunities for recreation, solitude, wildlife viewing, and exploration. In keeping with National Conservation Lands philosophy, visitor services such as visitor centers, lodging, and restaurants are located in adjacent communities. This philosophy was designed with the intent that communities will benefit economically from providing visitor services while minimizing the impact on the resource by not building intensive infrastructure such as roads and buildings inside the Monument boundary. The result is leaving the landscape as it was found, while supporting local communities.
