

London Peak

Recreation Opportunity Guide

Use Season: Year Round

Elevation: 2,835 ft

Length: 2.5 Miles

Difficulty: Moderate to Hard

Activities: Hiking

Facilities: Wheelchair accessible trail (0.5 miles)

History and Visitor Information: If you like to walk through groves of ancient trees, see a diversity of wildlife habitat, and enjoy a great workout then Lower London Peak Trail is for you. By the time you've completed this two mile hike, you will increase/decrease in elevation by over 1400 feet. Interpretive signs are being installed and will provide an opportunity to rest while learning about the area. In October of 1998, London Peak Overlook Accessible Trail was dedicated. Just 20 minutes from the I-5 corridor, this ½ mile barrier free trail (rated moderately difficult for wheelchair accessibility) meanders along a forested ridge line to the London Peak Overlook, offering spectacular views of the Rogue/Umpqua Divide, the Wolf Creek Canyon, and the historic Applegate Trail.

London Peak is named after the famous American author Jack London who stayed at the Wolf Creek Inn, which is located in the community of Wolf Creek (also visible from the overlook).

Driving Directions:

From Grants Pass, Oregon :

Take I-5, exit 76. Turn left, proceed under freeway. Go straight through intersection (stop sign) onto Bridge Lane. Drive two miles and turn right on BLM 33-6-26 (London Peak Rd.). Drive 1 mile to the first junction and turn right staying on 33-6-26. Continue to the left driving approximately 2 miles ending at the trailhead. (Follow sign to London Peak Trailhead).

From North:

Take I-5, exit 76. Proceed south through the community of Wolf Creek. Just before the south freeway on-ramp, turn right onto Bridge Lane. Drive two miles and turn right on BLM 33-6-26 (London Peak Rd.). Drive 1 mile to the first junction and turn right staying on 33-6-26. Continue to the left driving 2 miles ending at the trailhead.

Location:

T33S, R6W, Sec 21

Lat. & Long.: 42 41 37.52473,
-123 24 10.62020

Medford District Bureau of Land Management
Grants Pass Interagency Office
2164 NE Spalding Ave.
(541) 471-6500

www.blm.gov/or/resources/recreation

