

Fort Ord is loved for its beauty and rich biodiversity—including one of the largest remaining expanses of maritime chaparral composed of shrubs like manzanitas, wild lilac and chamise that supports numerous plant and animal species.

This expansive landscape near the Monterey Bay provides 86 miles of rugged trails. The monument covers approximately 14,650 acres and is jointly administered by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and U.S. Army. The BLM currently manages 7,200 acres and an additional 7,450 acres will come under BLM administration following the completion of appropriate environmental remediation by the U.S. Army.

The BLM manages the Fort Ord National Monument in a manner that protects natural values, honors the military and cultural heritage of the landscape and offers high-quality, outdoor recreation opportunities.

Military Heritage

Fort Ord is cherished for its link to the heroism and dedication of the men and women who served our nation and fought in the major conflicts of the 20th century. This area remains undeveloped thanks to its role as a U.S. Army facility from 1917–1994. Fort Ord's origins date back to 1917, when the U.S. Army purchased land near the Monterey Bay to use as a training ground for field artillery and cavalry troops stationed at the nearby Presidio of Monterey. The area was named Camp Ord after Major General Edward O.C. Ord—a distinguished Civil War veteran. Through the 1930s, Fort Ord's

- There are five fire stations near the National Monument that are shown on the trail map

Know The Signs

Single Track—popular for hikers and bikers. Watch your speed and avoid when wet.

Administrative Roads—most are graveled; a few are paved. More durable for wet use. These are open for public non-motorized use.

Closed Trails—undergoing restoration. Unsigned trails are closed trails too.

Trails Are Shared Access

Some trails can be heavily used. Please be considerate of other visitors!
