 Travel routes depicted on this map across Arizona State Trust Lands, National Forest lands, or private lands do not imply legal public access to use or cross those lands. Any public use of State trust lands is strictly under the jurisdiction of the Arizona State Land Department; use of National Forest lands is subject to National Forest regulations; and use of private lands requires permission of the land owner.
 All users must comply with State policies and regulations, National Forest regulations, and private land owner rights in order to legally use or traverse non-BLM lands.

ACCESS TO PUBLIC LANDS:
 Legal public access is available where a Federal, State or County road crosses public lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management unless posted by signing or legal notice. Recreational Target Shooting on Public Lands:

Public lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) are available for a variety of undeveloped recreational activities, including target shooting except where prohibited by federal, state, and local laws. In the Northwest Tucson Basin, there are no designated target shooting sites managed by the BLM, but sport shooting opportunities are available on undeveloped lands, and at several public shooting ranges. Shooting is strictly prohibited in developed recreation sites and other areas where posted. Target shooting is generally allowed on BLM-administered public lands, as long as it is done in a safe manner, without damaging natural resources or improvements on public lands. All targets, shell casings, debris and trash must be removed.

General public land regulations excerpted below apply to lands administered by the BLM, except within the Ironwood Forest National Monument, which is closed to recreational target shooting. The target shooting closure does not prohibit lawful possession of firearms or hunting according to Arizona hunting regulations. Shooters are responsible for knowing applicable laws and using firearms and other sport shooting weapons in a safe manner.

National BLM Recreational Target Shooting Regulations:

Shooting and possession of firearms is allowed on public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management (per Title 43 CFR 8365) provided that the specific shooting activity involved:

- Does not create a public hazard, public nuisance or direct threat to public safety and use.
- Does not damage or destroy natural features, native plants, cultural resources, historic structures or government and/or private property.
- Does not create littering, accumulation of refuse and hazardous materials, dumping or abandoned personal property.
- Does not violate an existing use restriction, closure order or supplementary rules notice.
