TRAIL INFORMATION

Four Bear Trail offers spectacular views of the North Fork Shoshone River valley and fascinating volcanic spires, turrets, and banded rock formations. Deer, elk, grizzly and black bear, and numerous bird species such as golden eagles and mountain bluebirds are often found in the area. This is grizzly country, so be bear aware!

Four Bear Trail begins at 5,600 ft. elevation and rises 1,700 ft. over 4.8 miles to the Shoshone National Forest boundary. The beginning of the trail features a reroute completed by the BLM in partnership with the Backcountry Horsemen; please follow the signs and stay off the old trail to allow for vegetation to grow. Trout Creek Trail and Jim Mountain Trail are accessible after another 1.5 and 4 miles, respectively. Alternatively, the Jim Mountain Trail may be accessed from the Jim Mountain Trailhead.

It is the visitor's responsibility to determine private and public land boundaries. Respect private property and do not trespass.

No camping allowed at trailhead.
