Dear Sirs,

There is nothing like the BWCA in the entire country. To risk this most used wilderness area in the United States to a mining industry that has been unable to do safe mining is unacceptable. We must reject the risk.

This is one place where jobs come second to protecting a truly unique wilderness geography. Once it is damaged there will be no repair.

The economic benefits of preserving this unique area far outweigh the benefit of jobs over a somewhat short span of time.

I have visited the BWCA and know first hand the special unique wonder of this place.

Please say NO to copper nickel mining.

Yours, Terry Raedeker
