I live in Lewisville, Texas approximately two miles south of the Lewisville Lake dam. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers considers the dam to be the seventh most dangerous in the United States needing more than five hundred million dollars in repairs. They are currently working on a fifty million dollar project to repair a very large breach that occurred during the spring.

Should the dam receive further damage, the results could be catastrophic for hundreds of thousands of people from Lewisville to Dallas. Oil and gas drilling and fracking that could cause even small tremors or earthquakes could destroy billions of dollars in property and thousands of lives.

Please seriously weigh the profits of these oil companies against the potential damage and destruction they could cause.
