The Mantle Family

In 2024, the BLM celebrates 26 years of working with the Mantle Family to train and gentle wild horses for adoption. Each year, the Mantle Ranch cares for approximately 200 head of mixed-age and gender of horses.

The Mantle Ranch is a family-based business started by Steve Mantle. Steve began working with wild horses in the 1980s and has since passed his wealth of knowledge on to his son Bryan, and his brother. Both Bryan and his wife, Katie, have gone on to join the family business and work with both wild horses and the BLM.

Their operation currently uses the Internet to place over 50% of the adopted horses. The facility offers on-site, and in-person adoptions by appointment. Their training methods involve simple safety, patience and consistency as the top priorities. They spend time observing the horses' behavior, and then develop a training plan for each horse based on their specific needs.
