The image displays four 10x10 grids illustrating the construction of the number 2345. The construction follows a specific pattern: the number is built row by row from top to bottom, and then the next row starts from the top again. The first grid shows the initial state with only the first row filled. The second grid shows the first two rows filled. The third grid shows the first three rows filled. The fourth grid shows the first four rows filled, representing the number 2345.
