In addition to residential structures, the fire continues to threaten an endangered species habitat. Full containment of this fire is expected on March 29.

In Oklahoma, the Chupco Fire (BIA) began on March 19 in Lamar, OK, has burned 3,756 (+1,351) acres, and is 80 (+20)-percent contained. The fire is being managed by a Type-3 IMT with 14 (+7) personnel assigned, all of which are DOI personnel. There are 6 (no change) residential structures threatened. Full containment was expected yesterday; however, no new containment date has been reported.

Also, in Seminole County, Oklahoma, the Walker Fire (BIA) began on March 22 and has burned 1,533 (no change) acres. The fire is 60 (no change)-percent contained and managed by a Type-3 IMT with 17 (no change) personnel assigned, all of which are DOI personnel. There are 5 (no change) residential structures threatened. Full containment was expected yesterday; however, no new containment date has been reported.

Media of Interest

Trump Expected To Sign Order Undoing Clean Power Plan Rule.

USA Today (3/27, King) reports that President Trump on Tuesday is expected to keep “a campaign vow to undo the Obama administration’s aggressive attempts to reduce carbon emissions” by signing an executive order “to roll back the Clean Power Plan rule.” Undoing the rule was a frequent promise last year from Trump, who “told friendly crowds in coal-producing states that lifting carbon restrictions would not only keep energy costs affordable but also help revitalize the coal industry and the communities economically ravaged by environmental regulations.”

Utah Gov. Herbert Asks Secretary Zinke To Visit Bears Ears.

The AP (3/27) reports that during his visit to Washington this week, Utah Gov. Gary Herbert urged Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke to visit the Bears Ears National Monument. Herbert said “Zinke seems to agree with Utah officials that the sacred tribal lands at Bears Ears need protections,” but Herbert “wants to see Congress designation protections, not a president.” Herbert told reporters “that he did not speak one-on-one” with President Trump “about a push from Utah GOP officials to repeal the southern Utah monument.”

Dakota Access Pipeline Prepares For Service.

Bloomberg News (3/27, Loh, Tobben, Natter) reports a Monday court filing shows that the Dakota Access pipeline is preparing for service, a move that comes less than a week after the State Department issued a presidential permit to approve the Keystone XL pipeline. Bloomberg says the President’s support of both projects “represents a dramatic reversal from former President Barack Obama’s opposition to them on environmental grounds.” Analysts say that while oil output from North Dakota’s Bakken shale region has decreased 23 percent from its peak, the pipeline’s opening is likely to spur more production as costs of transportation, in the form of rail shipments up until now, decrease. As Bakken oil is shipped south, Texas oil prices may fall enough to open markets overseas.

Eight Fishery Management Councils Decry Marine Monuments.

The Gloucester (MA) Times (3/27, Horgan) reports that the chairmen of the eight regional fishery management councils have sent a letter to President Trump “decrying the use of the Antiquities Act to create new marine national monuments and characterizing it as a disruptive end-run around traditional fishery management practices.” The letter “flatly states the use of the Antiquities Act impedes the councils from performing their statutory duties as set out in the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (MSA).” The letter stated, “Designation of marine national monuments that prohibit fishing have disrupted the ability of the councils to manage fisheries throughout their range, as required by MSA and in an ecosystem manner. Our experience with marine monument designations to date is that they are counter-productive to domestic fishery goals, as they have displaced and concentrated U.S. fishing effort into less productive fishing grounds and increased dependency on foreign fisheries that are not as sustainably managed as United States fisheries.”

Newhouse Opposes Grizzly Bear Restoration.

The Salem (OR) Capital Press (3/27, Wheat) reports that “a federal plan to restore and reintroduce grizzly bears to the North Cascade Mountains is opposed by U.S. Rep. Dan Newhouse.” According to Newhouse, the National Park Service and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service are moving forward with the restoration plan “without supporting sound science or adequate public meetings.” Newhouse sent a letter on March 27 to Karen Taylor-Goodrich, superintendent of the North Cascades National Park Service Complex, expressing his “firm opposition” to the plan.

Trump Signs Bills Rolling Back Obama-Era Regulations.

USA Today (3/27, Korte) reports that President Trump on Monday signed four bills which “rolled back more Obama-era regulations.” As he signed the measures, which “reverse rules on education, land use and federal purchasing,” Trump promised to “remove every job-killing regulation we can find,” and said more such bills are on the way. The Washington Times (3/27, Miller) says Trump “relished signing the deregulation orders that were passed under the rarely-used Congressional Review Act that fast-tracks disapproval of regulations.” The bills Trump signed Monday “rolled back the ‘Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces’ rule,” which “barred federal contracts to companies with a record of breaking wage, labor or safety laws”; the “so-called ‘Panning 2.0’ rule,” which “gave the Bureau of Land Management more power over land use”; and two other measures which “did away with Department of Education power over teacher training and state accountability requirements under the Every Student Succeeds Act.”
