Megan, here is the draft release. I think it will create more of a controversy than going ahead with the meeting and having Tim Smith and his crew and make it clear that it has nothing to do with the broader DOI review. Even before the release went out, the OHV community was expecting this meeting since they had requested it and the Southern Nevada District Office honored that request before the decision was made to conduct the review. The SNDO has held several of these informational meetings over the past few months. This one may get more attention, but not as much as not honoring a commitment to the OHV community in North Las Vegas. Steve

Bureau postpones Gold Butte Public Information Forum

LAS VEGAS – The Bureau of Land Management has postponed the Gold Butte National Monument Public Information Forum scheduled for May 25 in North Las Vegas. The forum is expected to be rescheduled after completion of the review of national monuments by the Department of the Interior.

More information on the review of national monuments is available on the Department of the Interior website at <https://www.doi.gov/pressreleases/interior-department-releases-list-monuments-under-review-announces-first-ever-formal>.

Gold Butte National Monument covers nearly 300,000 acres of remote and rugged desert landscape in southeastern Nevada. More information on Gold Butte National Monument is available at <https://www.blm.gov/gold-butte>.
