Good afternoon Sally,

We uploaded 3 additional maps for your use. These maps have some of the Proclamation Objects identified on them, however most of our resource inventories are incomplete and in single digit percentages (e.g., only 6% of GSENM has had a cultural resource inventory and it's less than that for paleontology). So while the maps display a lot of information they do not capture the objects that exist on GSENM that have not been inventoried--yet.

We also added a "Google Earth Movies", "Google Earth Images" folders. We thought that these may also help with orientation of the resources found within GSENM. If they seem helpful others could be developed.

Also, you're likely aware that Bob Wick is visiting GSENM next week and we look forward to more of his pictures of the monument.

Cindy is back in the office and we'd appreciate if new requests are made with her, as usual. We intend to send additional information about the letters map soon.

Have a great weekend!
