Emergency Management

In North Dakota, a bomb threat was received at the Standing Rock Middle School yesterday afternoon after all students and staff had already vacated the premises. BIA, NPS, and USPP personnel responded, and K-9s were used in the search of the building with negative results. As demobilization continues, the Incident Command Post will relocate to the Fort Yates BIA Police Department.

Many protesters are traveling to newly-established anti-pipeline camps throughout the country, with a stop in Washington, DC for a scheduled 4-day protest march. In conjunction with the protest in Washington, DC, there is a scheduled protest at the North Dakota State Capitol on March 10, where a forecast of snow and 12-degree temperatures may impact turnout.

In Oklahoma, the Irate Fire, located northeast of Lamar, OK, began on March 6 and has burned 2,000 acres. The fire is 40-percent contained and managed by a Type-4 Incident Management Team (IMT) with 8 DOI personnel assigned. There are 15 residential and 30 commercial structures threatened. The containment date has been set for March 11.

Also in Oklahoma, the Spocogee Fire, located south of Mannford, OK and in the vicinity of the Osage Reservation, began on March 1 and has burned 6,478 acres. The fire is 50-percent contained and managed by a Type-4 IMT with 8 personnel assigned, including 5 DOI personnel. The containment date for this fire has been set for March 15.

Trump Meets With Secretary Zinke, Alaska Senators.

E&E Daily (3/8) reports on President Trump's planned meeting with Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke and Alaska Sens. Lisa Murkowski and Dan Sullivan. A spokeswoman for Murkowski "plans to discuss the wide array of federal regulations and restrictions ... that are harming Alaska's economy by preventing the state from responsibly accessing its lands and resources." Sullivan's spokesman said the senator plans to talk about growing Alaska's economy by cutting regulations and reforming federal permitting. The meeting comes as "Trump is reportedly preparing to sign an executive order lifting the Obama administration's moratorium on coal leasing on federal lands." The AP (3/8) reports that in a joint statement, Murkowski and Sullivan said "they discussed everything from responsible resource development to national security.”

Archaeology Groups Ask Secretary Zinke To Protect Bears Ears.

The Fronteras (3/8, Morales) reports that “seven archaeology groups in the southwest have asked the new Interior secretary to support the Bears Ears national monument designation.” Carrie Heinonen, director of the Museum of Northern Arizona, “said the Obama administration extensively vetted this site.” Heinonen said, “The risk to future understanding of cultures that came before us is significant in this particular national monument due to the extraordinarily rich nature of the number of objects housed there.”

Cantwell Asks Secretary Zinke To Lift Suspension Of Valuation Rule.

The Seattle Times (3/8, Bernton) reports that Sen. Maria Cantwell, in a letter sent Tuesday to Interior Department Secretary Ryan Zinke, “accused the Trump administration of unlawfully putting on hold an Obama-era rule regulating oil, gas and coal valuations on federal lands.” Cantwell claimed that the Interior Department “lacked the authority for the Feb. 22 suspension of the rule.” She requested that Zinke “lift the stay on the rule.”

Ivanka Trump’s Landlord Involved In Dispute With US Government Over Proposed Mine.

The Wall Street Journal (3/8, Maremont, Grimaldi) reports that Ivanka Trump and Jared Kushner are renting their DC home from Chilean billionaire Andrónico Luksic, who bought the home following the November election and whose company is involved in a dispute with the US government over its plan build a copper-and-nickel mine next to a Minnesota wilderness area. The Obama Administration blocked the plan in its final days and the company is now urging the Trump Administration to reverse the decision.
