	An exposed tunnel with many small holes in a clay shale open to the air. The holes are small and irregular, sometimes half open to both sides and sometimes, as they appear to be, closed on one side. The holes are of various sizes, from a few millimeters to about 1 cm. They are scattered throughout the rock, but are particularly numerous in the upper part. The holes are not arranged in any regular pattern, but are scattered throughout the rock.
