- Letter E: The first grid shows a solid 10x10 black block. Subsequent grids show the right side of the block being removed in a series of steps, leaving a vertical bar on the left and horizontal bars on the top, middle, and bottom.
- Letter H: The first grid shows a solid 10x10 black block. Subsequent grids show the top and bottom horizontal bars being removed, leaving a vertical bar in the center and two vertical bars on the left and right sides.
- Letter F: The first grid shows a solid 10x10 black block. Subsequent grids show the bottom horizontal bar being removed, leaving a vertical bar on the left and a horizontal bar on the top.
- Letter I: The first grid shows a solid 10x10 black block. Subsequent grids show the top and bottom horizontal bars being removed, leaving a single vertical bar in the center.
