Trump Budget Proposal Would Sell Half Of Oil Reserve, Allow ANWR Drilling.

Reuters (5/22, Gardner) reports President Trump's proposed budget would sell half of the US Strategic Petroleum Reserve's approximately 688 million barrels of crude oil and open the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge to drilling. The sale of the oil is predicted to bring in a total of nearly $16.6 billion from 2018 to 2027. Some previous SPR sales have caused crude oil futures prices to fall, which would "work against Trump's efforts to revive the downtrodden oil and gas drilling industries." The budget also would "raise $1.8 billion over the coming decade by leasing oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Reserve."

Former Louisiana Official Scott Angelle Tapped As BSEE Head.

The Hill (5/22, Cama) reports that the Trump Administration has "tapped a former Louisiana utility regulator to lead the agency responsible for offshore oil and natural gas drilling safety." Scott Angelle, "most recently vice chairman of Louisiana's Public Service Commission, is now the head of the Interior Department's Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement (BSEE), the agency said Monday." Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke said in a statement, "Scott Angelle brings a wealth of experience to BSEE, having spent many years working for the safe and efficient energy production of both Louisiana's and our country's offshore resources." He continued, "As we set our path towards energy dominance, I am confident that Scott has the expertise, vision, and the leadership necessary to effectively enhance our program, and to promote the safe and environmentally responsible exploration, development, and production of our country's offshore oil and gas resources.”

Maine Gov. LePage Bans Signs To Katahdin Woods And Waters.

The AP (5/22, Sharp) reports that the Maine Department of Transportation is “delaying installation of signs alongside Interstate 95 for Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument pending the outcome of a review ordered by President Donald Trump last month of the 27 monuments created by his predecessors.” A spokesman for Republican Gov. Paul LePage “said it would be premature to install signs before completion of the 120-day review.” However, “a leading proponent of the monument accused the governor of just being ‘spiteful.’”

FWS Considering Changes To Protections For North Carolina Red Wolves.

The Hill (5/22, Devaney) reports that the Fish and Wildlife Service is “considering changes to the existing protections for North Carolina red wolves.” The FWS “issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on Monday as it prepares for potential changes to how it handles the ‘non-essential experimental population’ of these red wolves.”
