It should come in today. I just talked with Marcia and she had been tied up on other things, but but is finished with those and will focus on the contract.

The amount spent seems too low. In thinking back, I got the second approval for an increase because we were advised we had nearly used all of the available funds, so I will ask Marsha to check with the company to ensure they have no more invoices pending and have been paid on all submitted.

Thanks. I forwarded your question to her already.

The total value with all the extras labor, licenses, and storage was $27,906.71. Of that we spent $23,386.71. There is $4,520.00 still left on the task order; $1,588.75 in grad labor and $2,931.25 in project manager labor. That's quite an amount to de-obligate. Let's check with Marsha and make sure there are no outstanding invoices before I send it to closeout and they remove all remaining funds.

Let me check with Marsha, but I believe the contract is finished and all bills received. She is on travel and I won't get an answer until tomorrow.

I actually was about to send you a question on this - presuming no more expenses, how much did we spend on this contract? I believe it is about $30,000 or $35,000, but can't recall which.

Quick question. There are funds left on line item 60, 90, and 100. Can I assume there will be no invoice for the remaining amounts and we can de-obligate these funds?

I don't know if this is usual, but wanted you to know that we encountered a number of unexpected and as I was advised, novel, issues in the course of reviewing the 2.8 million public comments under this contract. We ended up using approaches and methods the contract system was not designed for. The company bent over backwards to address our needs and timelines, and resolved problems usually overnight. I would strongly recommend them.
