Subject: Uneven effort on review of national monument comments
Date: Tuesday, August 08, 2017 8:43:01 AM

Below is a chart showing the amount of comments reviewed in the current round of comment coding after 4 work days, by reviewer. Many of our coding team members are either not participating or devoting minimal time to the project. While I understand that some are on leave, I received only a few "out of office" replies to my message Thursday that the comments were available for review.

Ignore my contribution, as I have gained an assistant and we are able to do mass coding of form letters and near-form letters, hence the large numbers. However, this by its very nature leads to diminishing returns, as the larger groups are reviewed. We need a full team effort to complete the project. There are less than 20,000 comments remaining of the 65,000 we started with. I would appreciate your again urging your team members to devote time to this over the next 2 weeks.
