I just wanted to let you know that as a New Mexican I support the proposed reactivation of the Copper Flat mine. Not only will it bring jobs to a state that needs them, but it also will affirm that as Americans, we can depend on our own resources.

Americans use about 25% of the worlds natural resources, and to push extraction overseas is hypocritical. Not only that, by pushing resource extraction to places that may not have the benefit of good environmental laws, it can result in terrible environmental conditions there. I say that if we're going to use these resources, then we need to extract them here in a responsible way.
