Subject: “Managing and Planning for Efficient Facilities and Operations” DVD

The Bureau of Land Management engineering community at the National Operations Center, in cooperation with the National Training Center, has just completed a DVD titled “Managing and Planning for Efficient Facilities and Operations.” The DVD provides an overview of the concepts of sustainable facilities and operations.

The Bureau of Land Management owns and leases a large inventory of facilities and a fleet of vehicles and equipment, and employs a considerable workforce in accomplishing its mission. The manner in which we build, maintain, and operate these assets have a significant bearing on their impacts upon our planet and its current and future generations of people.

Recently enacted laws and Executive Order 13423, “Strengthening Federal Energy, Environmental and Transportation Management,” have mandated improvements in our management and activities in this realm. The enclosed DVD video program and Facilitator’s Guide is intended to provide an overview of these mandates, the basic principles that they represent, and the ways in which our Bureau has begun to respond. It is suitable for viewing by any BLM employee or contractor, and is particularly recommended for those who exercise management authority over our facilities and operations. The material presented in the DVD will eventually reside in the National Training Center’s Knowledge Resource Center and will be available for viewing at an employee’s desk.
