Subject: Water theft

As a born and raised Nevadan, I believe the plan to drain the water from the cow counties is theft. The outcome will be similar to the California aqueduct, and it's diversion of water from their northern counties. Owens lake is virtually gone. The flow will come from aquifers in areas with already dry lakes, and will likely affect cattle grazing, wildlife, and the various hot springs as well as residential use in those counties. It's their water, let them keep it for their future.
