

December 27, 2005

To: Brian Amme
Project Manager, BLM

Re: pesticide application to public lands

Dear Mr. Amme,

1 I am writing to express my great concern about any plan to disperse toxic materials over land, people and animals in many states in this country. It seems that we already have a much greater toxic load than life can bear on this planet and why do we continue to add more? Is this a suicidal mission - or homicidal - that BLM is undertaking? I know it probably isn't your fault, missives come from higher up, but please use your authority to go an alternative route. Apparently there is another option - non-toxic - called OPTION C. Please choose this option and let's begin this new year on a different path, where we put life on earth and sanity over the interests of the chemical and pharmaceutical monoliths in this country. Thank you for representing the land and the wildlife and the humans in the jurisdiction for which you are responsible. Let's make this a great year for the earth.

Harriett Fels

578 Sutton Way #215

Grass Valley, CA 95945