Dear Mr. Amme:

1 I urge you to cancel tentative plans to spray herbicides to a million acres in western states.

The whole ecosystem would be harmed by such extensive spraying – even with the most innocuous herbicides. Untargeted vegetation could be harmed and, certainly, runoff into streams would be damaging to aquatic creatures and the fish that feed on them.

Our country – the beautiful land that we love – deserves better treatment.

To spray a million acres of forest land with poisons would be unconscionable.

Cordially,
