

Project Schedule

for the TransWest Express Transmission Project

Proponent's anticipated timeline

Typical right-of-way acquisition and construction activities per segment

Building a transmission line section requires multiple steps, which are shown in this chart along with the approximate time it takes to complete each step along a typical 50-mile segment. The final sequence and activity durations may vary.