Dear Sirs:

I disagree with the Wyoming Outdoor Council concerning the Sweetwater Basin. It is vital to eliminate a dependency on foreign oil. Canadian, Mexican, and friendly nations exempt, we must stop importing oil, and create an intelligent energy policy. Democrats and Republicans have not gotten the job done.

I have hunted the Sweetwater Basin for antelope every year for over 12 years. I have continuously watched antelope and deer eat and live virtually next to an oil pad or pump. I do not enjoy the smell or looks of the oil industries equipment, but the light presence appears to have very little effect on the animals.

With a watchful presence and an intelligent plan utilizing directional drilling I feel we can extract our oil without a detrimental impact on our wildlife. If an oil spill or blatant disregard for our laws exist, the guilty party or parties should be harshly punished and heavily fined with restoration put immediately in place.

I trust that you, who are in charge of the American peoples land, will make a decision that will allow our resources to be extracted in an intelligent manner without heavily impacting our wildlife.

Sincerely:
